SUNDAY BARBERING.
Shaving 10 Cents.
After this date my Barber Shop on Harlow Street will be open Sundays, and I shall be found at my chair prepared to attend to the wants of my customers and to prove to my patrons that I am not actuated by pecuniary motives, I shall add here to my regular week day prices and make no extra charges for Sunday work
I take this occasion to say to my friends and the general public that, in common with a large majority of the barbers of this city, I believe that we should have a day for rest and therefore I was one of the number who closed their shops on Sunday, but having been thwarted in that project by the persistent efforts of a certain broker and the decision of our worthy County Attorney, I feel myself obliged to keep open on Sunday, in order to extend as full an accommodation to my customers as others of our profession, and to retain my week day business

MEETING OF THE MAINE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE IN CONNECTION WITH THE PENOBSCOT FARMERS CLUB

HELD AT HAMPDEN, TUESDAY, NOV. 9

(Our own Reporter's Notes.)

EVENING.

At 7½ o'clock quite a large audience assembled to listen to a lecture by Prof W H. Jordan, of the State College, on Soil Fertilization All were highly pleased with the able manner in which he treated his subject He said, in treating agricultural subjects the endeavor should be to discover and establish facts and principles of general application. In what I may say here to night it will be my purpose to speak only of certain general principles that underlie farm practice,—principles that are of the utmost importance to farmers.

We must remember that fertility or lack of fertility of the soil determines the success or lack of success which will attend the efforts of the farmer Whether he be a fruit grower, a producer of hay, grain, milk or meat, he must depend upon his soil as the basis of all his efforts. To make his soil fertile should be his leading desire

When is a soil fertile, and what is soil fertilization? We say a soil is fertile when it produces abundant crops. We increase its fertility when we increase its capacity for crop production The essential thing for the farmer to know is the change that is necessary in order to make a fertile out of a barren soil.

Plants get their materials for growth from the soil and air. When the soil and air contain the necessary materials in abundance luxuriant growth is possible The very fact that plants refuse to grow well on some soils is evidence that they can get only a limited supply of raw materials Plants take up about fourteen ingredients Part come from the soil part from the air Those that come from the air exist in great abundance for all the needs of plant life When those that exist in the soil fail in quantity, there is a failure of all or part of them We have come to know that the soil never fails to furnish in great abundance certain ingredients that plants take from it, while others become exhausted so far as available forms are concerned These latter are nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. The proof that they are the substances the failure of plants to obtain which is the cause of poor crops, is that when a sufficient mixture of them in proper forms is applied to run out soils in a very large majority of cases the fertility is restored Not that it is necessary to apply all of them in every case A soil may be as barren when it fails to supply one of the plant's essential ingredients as when all are lacking, and it is often the case that when a manure contains but one of these three valuable substances it produces a large increase of crop.

The sources of material for soil fertilization are two, commercial manures so called, and the manure manufactured on the farm In any case a manure has value for the farmer according as it contains one two or all of the ingredients mentioned, nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. It is not so much a question of the bulk of the manure as it is a question of its composition.

Commercial manures depend for their value upon the amount they contain of compounds of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Some of these fertilizers contain largely phosphates, such as dissolved bone bone meal, bone ash, ground phosphatic rock, etc Superphosphates are chiefly valuable for the phosphoric they contain, although small percentages of nitrogen and potash are usually present They are made from bone or phosphatic rock treated with sulphuric acid. Potash is furnished from wood ashes, or the potash salts that are mined in Germany and sent to this country.

We get nitrogen from Chili saltpeter, sulphate of ammonia, dried fish, dried blood, meat scrap, etc. The flesh of any animal is valuable as a manure chiefly for the nitrogen it furnishes to the soil. These various substances occur in our markets either singly or mixed with each other, so that it is possible for a farmer to buy a manure containing one of these ingredients, or two or all of them.

Is it well for farmers to buy commercial fertilizers? The profits of so doing will depend largely upon three conditions:

1. Some reliable guarantee of the quality of the fertilizer bought, should be furnished.

2. Farmers should be sufficiently informed about commercial manures to understand how to buy the ingredients they desire.

3. Farmers should be sufficiently acquainted with the needs of their farm to know what ingredients the soil needs in order to give an increase of crop.

At present there is in the State of Maine an admirable chance for farmers to get cheated when buying commercial manures.

No one can tell the value of a superphosphate by its color or odor. Not even by applying it to the soil can its commercial value be told, only its value to the man who uses it. It may do no good in one case and much good in another, but neither can determine its value in the markets. That is determined by the demand and supply. The value of any particular fertilizer depends upon its composition, and that the chemist must determine. We need in Maine a station where the fertilizers offered in our markets can be analyzed. Such a plan would save thousands of dollars to the farmers of the State. In Connecticut, such a station has affected a great change in the fertilizer business, so that farmers there now buy their fertilizers at twenty-five per cent cheaper than before the station was established. $500,000 are probably expended annually in Maine for fertilizers. A saving of ten per cent of their value would result in a total saving of $50,000 I believe a greater saving than that could be made. One-tenth of that sum would pay the expenses of a station that would be able to look after our fertilizers and do much other valuable work for agriculture Such a supervision would give farmers more confidence in the fertilizers offered them

It is obvious that farmers should have some knowledge of the composition of the various manures in the market; for until they do they can never know how to buy to their advantage If one wishes to buy a phosphate he must know what to buy, in order to get phosphoric acid, and the same with reference to potash and nitrogen

The question of what a farmer shall buy, he must determine for himself by experiment on his own land One oil needs what another does not Let a farmer try the different ingredients, either alone or mixed, and then buy the one that returns him largest profits. Manuring recipes that shall be the most profitable for every farmer, are not possible Be cautious about buying of the man who wants to sell you something new under the sun, that will grow wonderful crops. When a manure is worth anything it is because it contains ingredients that have been in our markets for years The name of a fertilizer has nothing whatever to do with its value After a farmer has discovered that phosphoric acid is what his land needs to grow corn, then let him buy materials that contain phosphoric acid

Can commercial fertilizers ever be used with profit I think so You may not be able to That you must discover for yourself If you keep an account with your fields, you will then settle the question Agriculture is a profession that demands the same application of business principles and careful observation that any other calling does

Farm manures constituted the other source of fertilizing material Like commercial manures, those from the farm depend for their value upon their content of nitrogen compounds, phosphoric acid and potash

Farm manures are a direct product of the food of farm animals, and they vary in value according to the composition of the food and the uses made of it by the animal All common cattle foods contain nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, but in greatly varying quantities

A ton of cotton seed meal contains approximately seventy eight pounds of nitrogen, thirty pounds of potash and fifty six pounds of phosphoric acid A ton of turnips would contain only three and one-half pounds of nitrogen, six and one-half pounds of potash, and nearly two pounds of phosphoric acid What a difference between the value of the manure from a ton of cotton seed meal and that from a ton of turnips!

But the total quantities of these ingredients that occur in the food do not pass into the manure, an amount being used by the animal which varies with the kind and uses of the animal

All other things being equal the best manure is from a full grown animal standing still in the barn Growing animals and milch cows abstract nitrogenous material and mineral substances from the food, thus making the manure poorer I have estimated the money value of the manure from a ton of some of our more common cattle foods, and in so doing have considered eighty per cent of the nitrogen as passing into the manure, and ninety-five per cent of the phosphoric and potash The prices per pound for the several ingredients are the same as those ruling for commercial fertilizers when the ingredients are in the same form as in the yard manure

Good English hay,	$5 25
Clover hay,	7 00
Corn meal,	6 00
Wheat bran,	11 00
Cotton seed meal	15 00
Oat straw,	2 60
Potatoes,	1 60
Beet pulp,	1 15

If a farmer can afford to buy commercial fertilizers he can afford to pay the above prices for the manure from a ton of the different cattle foods in the list. Any way the above figures show the relative value of the manurial residue from the foods for which I have calculated. What a difference it makes then in the worth of a farmer's manure heap what he feeds to his cattle

Except under special circumstances, I believe the cheapest way for a farmer to buy manure is to buy it in the form of food for his cattle, and thus derive a double profit.

But it is not enough to make manures It must be saved. The enormous waste from barn yards has been a curse to Maine farming. No man should claim to be a good farmer who allows his manure heap to leach, or his liquid manure to run to waste. Any farmer who does this forfeits all right to criticise his neighbors or the College at Orono. If farmers would save their manure and make it worth as much as possible let them use plenty of absorbents, catch all the liquids, and keep the manure heap covered. The marked success of many farmers who adopt such a course is sufficient proof of its wisdom.

KEEPING VEGETABLES

After the farmer has raised a good supply of vegetables, he often fails to realize the full benefit of his labor from lack of knowledge how to keep them This is the case especially with squashes and that class of vegetables which require to be kept comparatively warm and dry. It is quite natural for him to put them in a pile in the cellar and then wonder that they rot. Squashes, pumpkins and all that class of vegetables require, first, an absence of light; second, a dry temperature, not fifty-five or sixty degrees, and third, that one does not come in contact with another. We have always had success in keeping them well into spring by placing them in a cool, dry chamber until freezing occurs, and then removing them to a closet for safe keeping over winter. Thus the Hubbard and other hard shell varieties of squashes may be kept until May and even June. For use until February they will keep tolerably well in a dry cellar placed on shelves. Boston Marrow is the first to decay. The Turban—to our mind one of the best of the winter varieties, especially for baking—will often keep in the cellar until March. Those only intended for use later need to be treated to the dry, cool closet; it will pay for at the latter part of winter and early spring there is a dearth of vegetable food on the farm that makes such articles especially valuable

HEWITT PILLORIED

As the meshes of evidence have closed around the Democratic National Committee as the sponsors and promoters of the monstrous Morey fraud in which forgery was to be sustained by wholesale perjury not even the miserable Barnum has become so conspicuously pilloried as the prestidigitateur chairman of the Executive Committee, Abram S Hewitt who has attempted to throw the weight of his respectability and of his vaunted personal friendship for General Garfield, in favor of the conspiracy by declaring the 'Chinese letter to be genuine No wonder that Mr Hewitt writhes under the scathing analysis of the evidence by Judge Davis, when that testimony puts him in more contemptible plight than the obscure tools by whose perjuries the Democratic National Committee sought to cover their original crime Let us look at this leading Democrat as he stands self-pilloried before the public, and let us see how poor a shift is the defence he seeks to offer by denouncing—not the scoundrels in this conspiracy but the Judge before whom a part of them have been exposed

Josh Hart testified that he received the Morey letter through the mail Oct 15 and that on the 19th he took letter and envelope to the Democratic National Headquarters where he submitted them to Chairman Barnum Speaker Randall Abram S Hewitt and several other members of the Committee Randall does not seem to have given the sanction of his name to the forgery but Mr Hewitt who professed to be a friend of General Garfield and had received in times past several friendly personal letter from him hastened with indecent zeal to pronounce the Morey letter genuine It fraud went forth with Hewitt's endorsement as his main support and sheer hundreds of thousands of copies had been printed in the Truth and Brooklyn Eagle of Oct 20 which were sent by the Democratic National Committee to all parts of the country Mr Hewitt was ready to aid the outrage by giving it another endorsement On the evening of Oct 20 Mr Hewitt made a speech at a Democratic meeting in Chickering Hall, New York at which he charged that the sympathies of the Republican party were all with employers and against the laboring class and referring to General Garfield said 'His real opinions are I think made perfectly clear in the astonishing letter which appeared in a New York paper this morning Whereupon he read the letter and added Some people may incline to pronounce it a forgery I have seen it I am familiar with Gen Garfield's signature I have compared it with letters in my possession and I have no doubt it is genuine If it be a forgery it is the work of a consummate artist. But if I thought after examination there was the slightest doubt of its authenticity I would not refer to it But it accords with the course which Gen Garfield always took on questions affecting the interests of employer

That speech was reported in the World of Oct 21, and Mr Hewitt's renewed endorsement was telegraphed far and wide, from the Atlantic to the Pacific where the Committee of which Mr Hewitt is a leading member had scattered fac similes of the letter as thickly as leaves of the forest In the same issue of the World Oct 21, appeared Gen Garfield's despatch denouncing the letter as a 'stupid forgery, and three days later the press of the country printed the specific denial made by Gen Garfield after he had seen the Morey fac-simile and with it appeared the statement of the Washington post-master showing that the stamps on the envelope furnished proof of fraud All this only stimulated the honorable Mr Hewitt in his effort to fasten a forged letter upon his 'friend and in an interview printed in the World Oct 27, Mr Hewitt declared in reference to his Rochester speech

I then stated it as my confident belief that Gen Garfield signed the letter, and nothing has occurred since to change this belief. Being asked by the reporter How about Gen Garfield's explicit denial he added "What difference does that make? When a man opposes his testimony to circumstances on which a belief is founded, his character must overbalance the force of the circumstances if he is to be believed Here I have three indisputably genuine signatures of Gen Garfield Their evidence says that the fourth signature was made by the same hand, to say nothing of the corroboration to be found in Gen Garfield's record as to the sentiments of the letter Now, to oppose my belief is the mere word of Gen Garfield, a man in whom I know there is no truth Gen Garfield's word as against that signature, will have to be reinforced by the arrest of somebody, and his conviction as a forger before I shall be convinced that I am wrong in my belief'

That is the remarkable language used by Mr Hewitt concerning a friend, and in the face of the clear and explicit declarations of Gen Garfield's letter of acceptance concerning the Chinese question. But Hewitt had not yet gone far enough, and after having sneeringly challenged the Republicans to arrest somebody, he made another speech in New York City, Oct 28, in which he sneered that Gen Garfield had caused the arrest of a man for calling him a liar and remarked "Now, if every man who calls him a liar was to be arrested, there would be but few of us left He calls upon every honest Democrat to denounce the forgery, while that it is a forgery rests only on his unsupported denial And then, to place himself more picturesquely before the public, he added My personal relations with Gen Garfield have always been pleasant'

If Mr Hewitt could know and appreciate just what 'honest Democrats' think of him and his colleagues in this dirty business as he stands pilloried with the forger Philp, the perjurers Morey and O Brien, and the rest of the vile crew that were coached and paid for their crimes at the National Democratic Headquarters he would understand how he aggravates the disgrace by railing at the Judge in whose court the villany has been exposed

The honest and decent people of all parties call upon the prosecuting officers and courts to leave no stone unturned in bringing to justice every one of the responsible leaders who were implicated in a monstrous crime against popular government

REPUBLICAN FAIRNESS IN CONTRAST WITH DEMOCRATIC FRAUD

The Governor and Council have canvassed the votes for Senators Representatives and County officers The officers elected were the same as heretofore announced There are several defective returns, and, in remarkable contrast to last year's experience they are mostly from Aroostook towns There is but one return that is 'fatally defective' and it comes from the town of Fort Kent—the ballwick of Major William Dickey the king of all the Madawa liars The clerk of the town neglected to sign the return This would invalidate the return and count out Maj Dickey who has been chosen Representative from that district Should this course be pursued, it would be the height of political justice as the Major was one of the leading advisers in the counting out conspiracy of Gardiner etc having hastened from the distant state of Texas to the audacious piracy of the scheme to give the weight of his counsel and advice He was also one of the sidewalk and Union Hall members of the Joe Smith Legislature and held out until the thing was bursted by the Supreme Court and then came crawling back into the legal Legislature, with his carpet bag stuffed with resolves making appropriations for the building of roads and bridges and what-not in Aroostook But did the Republican Governor and Council administer to Major Dickey a dose of his own medicine? Not a bit of it Instead of counting him out they notified him of the mistake and gave him an opportunity to correct the return Republicans do not adopt the schemes of conspirators Their effort is to sustain the vote of the people, and not to defeat it

THE TESTIMONY AGAINST HIM

Mr Abram J Hewitt the chairman of the Executive branch of the Democratic National Committee is not in an enviable position He is branded as a liar by his own party associates, and his attempts to extricate himself from this position only sink him deeper in the mire In reluctantly submitting to an interview by a reporter of the New York Times Mr Hewitt plainly said he had hoped to be relieved from any further connection with the Chinese letter No one will doubt the authenticity of this naive remark Mr Hewitt can't be accommodated As indignant and as outraged public has got it him and they propose to hunt the rascal down

The Honorable Mr Hewitt was exceedingly indignant at the scathing criticisms of Judge Davis concerning his part in the matter He says:

Now the simple, unanswerable reply is that THE LETTER HAD ALREADY BEEN FURNISHED IN THE TRUTH BEFORE I HAD EVER SEEN MR HART OR ANY COPY OF IT In fact Judge Davis must have known because I had sworn to his presence and after examination by Mr Brighton in which Mr Bliss intervened to identify dates that the interview with Mr Hart and the examination of the letter took place on the 20th of October, after its publication in the Truth and not before I do not know whether Mr Hart made a mistake in his testimony as to the date but if he did there is no possible justification for Judge Davis to base a statement on this mistake in order to attack from the bench the character of a citizen after the mistake has been pointed out and the date had been proved beyond possibility of all controversy

Against this statement of Mr Hewitt who was not under oath we bring the testimony of Joseph Hart, the publisher of Truth We quote from Democratic sources The following testimony of Mr Hart was published in the New York World of Nov 9

My first impression seeing only the card was to throw the whole away but on further examination I saw that the letter was important and called out to some gentlemen in the next room that I had a very singular letter signed James A Garfield We all examined it together and compared the signature with one in the office admitted to be genuine, and made up our minds that it also was genuine Before we published it in fac simile we notified the National Democratic Committee that we had such a letter and IT WAS TAKEN THEN TO THE ROOMS OF THAT COMMITTEE AND SUBMITTED TO THE EXAMINATION OF CONGRESSMEN RANDALL AND HEWITT, SENATOR BARNUM AND OTHERS AND WAS BY THEM AFTER EXAMINATION PRONOUNCED TO BE IN THEIR OPINION A GENUINE LETTER SIGNED BY MR GARFIELD I THEN HAD IT PHOTOGRAPHED

It will be seen that Hewitt states he never saw the letter until it had been published in the Truth, while the publisher of the paper swears in court he exhibited the letter to Hewitt and Randall and Barnum, previously to its publication! Hewitt, who assumes the air of a gentleman, has in this transaction put himself in a worse position than the poor dupe Philp

Unofficial returns received from the VIth Congressional District of Mississippi, give John R Lynch, Rep a majority of 1,000 over James R Chalmers Dem This result creates quite a flutter among the Democrats, at Jackson, many of whom concede that Lynch is entitled to receive the certificate, and openly denounce the action of the Board of Canvassers of Warren County and the City of Vicksburg, in throwing out the entire Republican vote, the counting of which gave to Lynch a majority of 2,000 Mr. Lynch will contest every foot of ground to prevent being deprived of his rights in the final count It is thought that he will secure the certificate

The knashing of the Democratic teeth at Judge Davis of New York, is a revival of the hatred entertained for him as the principal instrument in pulling down the Tammany ring.

POLITICAL NOTES

The late Solon Robinson of Florida, was an intense Republican. The night before election he was told that he would probably die within twenty-four hours "Well," said he, "if Garfield is elected, wrap my body in an American flag, and bury me' He died election morning and on the 4th inst was buried according to instructions

Representative Springer (Dem) of Illinois, said in Washington last Thursday that the Republicans in the House of Representatives had a clear majority, and would organize that body

The Connecticut men bet on the question whether P T Barnum, the showman was a brother of William H Barnum Phineas was written to on his subject and answered that he thanked Heaven there was no nearer relationship than that of Adam

For sale—At a terrible sacrifice, stereotype plates of the Morey letter Apply to Mr Barnum, at the office of the Truth, New York

Some of the Democratic papers are intimating that it is not desirable to hurry the appointing of Representatives in Congress under the new census in view of the large number of State Legislatures now controlled by the Republicans They would prefer better opportunities to gerrymander

Governor elect Bell of New Hampshire, entertained over 1000 friends and townspeople with a grand supper Saturday night Music was furnished by the Exeter Cornet Band

Judge John V Wright, the defeated Democratic candidate for Governor of Tennessee has written a manly and patriotic letter, saying that he bows without a murmur to the verdict of the people, while he rejoices that so large a majority of both parties have declared in favor of the 'strict maintenance of the public faith State and national He hopes for a reunion of the regular and the repudiating wings of the Democratic party of the State upon a debt paying platform

The courts seem to be against the Democratic party as usual That was the complaint of the Democratic press during the Garcelon sneak thief conspiracy in Maine and it is their complaint now concerning Judge Davis's heartless treatment of the Morey forgery conspiracy It is very evident that the Democratic party can never really enjoy itself until the courts are abolished —Tribune

CONDITION OF THE INDIANS.

The Annual Report of Gen Pope Commanding the department of Missouri gives a detailed history of troubles with the Indians in Colorado and New Mexico which States are not yet wholly settled He says there will certainly be no trouble with the Utes this winter and attributes the outbreak of Victoria to the determined purpose of the interior dept to the effect of the removal of his band to Arizona The situation in the Indian territory is complicated by the fact that we have not only to secure safety against any Indian outbreaks or raids upon the settlements of Texas and Kansas but also to protect the territory against the invasion of white emigrants and settlers who seem determined to possess such part of it as they consider open to preemption claims One source of trouble with the Indians has always been in relation to their food and Gen Pope recommends that he forbid the Indian agent to punish the Indians by withholding provisions from them In relation to the attempt of Capt Paine and followers to colonize in the Indian Territory, Gen Pope says They think they have a right to do so, and are anxious to test the question in the courts Gen Pope thinks a decision on this point very desirable. The administration duties of the department have been satisfactorily performed, troops are well supplied, and the armies are in good condition

Gen Ord, commanding the department of Texas reports that nine men have been killed two wounded and one captured by the Indians since October 1st 1879 the casualties being three less than during the previous year Reports that deserters have increased and recommends some general system under which regiments could take turns in stations where they would improve under the influence of location and not feel distance marched in expeditions and constabularing the bear, 40 miles and no more in a year of 9411 miles Gen Ord considers railroads great civilizers and says the Mexican Generals keep good order on their side of the line and suggests an increased force on our side of the border

Gen McCook reports 3,603 scholars in the post schools of the army and says a good spirit is manifested, and states there is a lack of teachers He says educated men learn the use of musketry arms quicker than the ignorant He recommends the enlistment of 100 young men one for each post school to be voted as school masters, with the rank and pay of Commissary Sergeant in order that the schools shall have permanent teachers

THE STELLARTON HORROR

The terrible mining explosion at Stellarton N S has shocked the whole community Late Saturday night a second explosion took place the noise of which was heard a great distance A despatch states that more explosions were expected during the night but although clouds of smoke are issuing from the fan shaft no hoisting has occurred At 10 o clock Sunday morning considerable colored smoke was coming from the shaft and as several buildings are close by the service of the new Glasgow steam fire engine was obtained to try if possible to save these buildings in case of fire, and also pour a stream into the burning pit A large number of people were standing about the works, looking on and the firemen were engaged in getting the steamer in a position, when at 12 30 another blast occurred and an immense volume of smoke rushed from the fan shaft high into the air accompanied with sticks, etc The spectators scattered in all directions Fortunately no one was hurt Up to this time all seemed quiet about the hoisting and pumping shafts, which are 200 yards from the fan shaft, but at 12 50, another immense volume of darker-colored smoke came from the fan shaft, and also from both the hoisting and pumping shafts A few minutes later the smoke from all the shafts had ceased and the air appeared to be drawn down and as this suction is a symptom of another explosion, people ran and put themselves into a place of safety

In a few minutes another dense volume of smoke came forth, but accompanied by no noise It is fully expected that the fire, which now must be immense in the mine, will soon show itself from the mouth of the shafts when all buildings in the vicinity will be in the greatest danger Very great fears are entertained that the whole workings of the Ford pit will be destroyed, though efforts are now being made, by a large gang of men, who are at work digging a trench, to let into the mine water from the river, which is close by. This is the last resort, and it will take a good while to get sufficient water to drown the fire It is hoped the fire may be confined to the Ford pit and prevented from extending to the workings of the Cage pit, situated half a mile west of the Ford pit, from being connected with the latter by a tunnel Should these works be destroyed the effect on the working classes connected with the mines will be terrible, and untold misery must ensue The employees of the company number over 500, and other and more terrible explosions may occur any time The greatest excitement exists

[See despatches for later information]

General Garfield is credited by the Cincinnati Commercial with saying to a personal friend in Columbus recently "Great as our victory was, I believe that the repeal letter cost us all the Northern states we lost. I do not intend to let up on these rascals until they are punished to the fullest extent of the law." Carry the news to Barnum!

The prevalence of Life Insurance may justly be regarded as the measure of advancing refinement and social virtue, and if it be true that 'if any provide not for his own and especially for those of his own house, he has denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel' then it is also true that it is the type and outgrowth of practical Christianity—Hon John E Sanford, Mass

UNITED STATES ARMY.

Annual Report of Gen Sherman.

Important Suggestions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15 Gen Sherman, in his annual report, shows the actual available force of the army to be 20,000 enlisted men, and renews his recommendation that the actual number of enlisted men, exclusive of ordnance men, engineers, clerks, etc., be increased to 25,000 men. The Army as at present is too small for good discipline and efficient service in relation to the artillery the General says if there has been any neglect in this arm of the service it is due to lack of men and the diminution of Congress to provided modern guns for sea coast ports.

Of the various military posts in the far West, which have been rendered unnecessary by the extension of railroads and the increase of settlers, Gen. Sherman recommends that they be sold, and the proceeds applied to the establishment of strategetic points for permanent occupation and improvement whence men can be sent on special service. This plan will enable the maintenance of large garrisons with increased discipline and efficiency.

Speaking of the sea-coast defences, Gen. Sherman says We now have fifty millions of people, and the idea of any hostile force land ing on our coast is preposterous, but our great commercial ports should be made so safe that even an apprehension of danger would not be felt. Portland, Boston, Newport, New York, Philadelphia, Hampton Roads, Port Royal, Key West, Pensacola, New Orleans, San Diego, San Francisco, and Port Townsend, should all be properly fortified and garrisoned. Minor forts should be sold or abandoned. An annual appropriation of one million dollars would in ten years put these forts in good order, and another million a year properly arm them

The General thinks the artillery school at Fortress Monroe and the West Point Academy an honor to the country Of West Point he says that from time to time prejudical complaints have arisen to its prejudice as the Whittaker case investigation, which he thinks resulted in a perfect wheat on of the officers of the Academy and corps of cadets at that institution is free from their manner of appointment the most democratic body on earth

There is no more prejudice against colored person at West Point than in the country at large, and practice of equality at West Point is in advance of the rest of the country To discriminate in favor of a colored boy by reason of his color, is as much a violation of the 14th amendment as to discriminate against him, perfect impartiality being the rule; and that I believe the authorities at West Point have endeavored to follow. General Sherman favors the formation of colored regiments, eight, as the Ninth Cavalry and Tenth Infantry, unions, each with the fourteenth amendment, and think all colored men should be assigned to regiments regardless of color.

After expressing a desire to establish as early as possible infantry and cavalry schools at Leavenworth, on the plan of the artillery school at Fort Monroe, General S concludes his report with the statement that the entire Army is in his opinion as patriotic, as patient, as willing to encounter danger and hard service, as at any former period of our history.

HANLAN'S RACE WITH FICKETT.

THE RACE A MERE PROCESSION.

AN IMMENSE CROWD.

Hanlan Wins An Easy Victory!

Large Amounts of Money Change Hands.

LONDON, Nov 15 The Sportsman says the bets in the Hanlan-Trickett match represent a far greater sum than was ever dependent upon the result of a boat race before It is stated that the Marquis of Lorne has given instructions to have the result specially telegraphed to him. Sir Hercules Robinson, who recently returned from Melbourne, Australia, witnessed the race.

The sculling match between Edward Hanlan and Edward Trickett over the Thames' championship course, for the championship of England, the Sportsmen's challenge cup, and £400, came off to day and was won by Hanlan. The weather was favorable.

The race was a mere procession from the start to the finish. Hanlan rowed in splendid form. He stopped several times, allowing Trickett to come up.

A tremendous crowd witnessed the race. The river was perfectly still.

Before the start Hanlan had taken the first place in the betting, 7 to 1 on him being offered freely, and some wagers were made of 2 to 1.

The weather was dull and misty and the air chilly. The start occurred at 12 11, at which time the tide was nearly full and the water slack and smooth.

Hanlan had the Surrey side of the river. When a start was effected Hanlan was striking the water at 35 strokes a minute and Trickett at 11 Hanlan rowed easily and in perfect style showing his superiority from the first stroke.

Crabtree was passed in six minutes and four seconds from starting Here Trickett began to labor and look ill, and by time the Soapworks were reached the race was absolutely over.

Occasionally Hanlan stopped rowing until Trickett came up when a few powerful strokes sent him ahead again. Between Hammersmith Bridge and Chiswick, Hanlan laid down twice. He stopped entirely once and again paddled along, first with one scull and then with the other. He leaned over to wash his face and chatted with Elliott who was rowing alongside and finally won by about three lengths which he could have made a half mile if he had chosen.

The time of the race was 29 minutes and 9 seconds.

Trickett's form created great disappointment He was much distressed at the finish while Hanlan was perfectly fresh.

TORONTO, Nov. 15. Great excitement prevailed here to day on receipt of the news that Hanlan had defeated Trickett. Crowds wild with delight surrounded newspaper and telegraph offices. The Governor General Lieut. Governor and other high dignitaries sent Hanlan congratulatory messages.

LONDON Nov 15 The Sportsman says though Trickett was not in good condition in this race, Hanlan is such a superior sculler that he could not be beaten by Trickett even if the latter was in the best of health

Hanlan's official time, 26 12. Trickett, 26 19

Hanlan says he will certainly compete in the international regatta, unless prevented by illness.

DEATH IN THE MINES.

Condition of Affairs at Stellarton.

The Scene of Death and Destruction.

STELLARTON, N. S. Nov 15 The entrances to the mines have been closed by putting down bundles of pressed hay and brush and throwing on earth

The Pictou steam fire engine has arrived. Both it and the New Glasgow steamer are at work pumping water into the fan shaft. It was fully expected that a heavy explosion would take place immediately after the entrance and the air was shut off from the mine, but up to 10 o'clock Sunday night none had occurred and the people dispersed to their homes.

STELLARTON, Nov. 15. To day while a number of men were at work filling in, the main shafts of the mine blasted from all the shafts, breaking out the filling. The workmen had a narrow escape, but none were hurt. The smoke continued to pour out of the foremen. It now but little is coming from any but the fan shaft, and the steam mixed with smoke shows that the water is near the fire This morning smoke has been issuing from old bye paths near the Cage pits. The tall chimney of the fan pit is now a heap of ruins. The head of the shaft have been scattered in every direction, and all the surrounding buildings are partially destroyed, while everything in sight is thickly coated with the black from the smoke. The work of flooding the mine is steadily going on.

A special train will leave this city at four o'clock, the fair for the round trip being fifty cents; or sixty cents if any one prefers to go down on the regular train in the evening. The exhibition will close with a silent drill by Lieut. Charles S. Collins and Serg't Fred A. Green. It is proposed to make this one of the pleasantest events of the season.

PETITION FOR PARDON. The Augusta Journal says: "We learn that an effort is being made for the pardon of Charles B. Gilman, of Waterville, now serving out a sentence of three years in the State Prison. Many petitions, numerously signed, are to be presented to the Governor and Council, which would seem to indicate a strong feeling in favor of Gilman's release from custody. One petition contains the names of about five hundred persons in Waterville, Augusta, and other places; one signed by many of the lawyers in the county, and another signed by nearly if not all, the jurors who brought the verdict."

DEAF MUTES. Rev. Samuel Rowe, a Missionary of the Maine Deaf Mute Mission, will hold meetings in the vestry of Hammond St. church next Sabbath at 10.30 A. M., and 2 30 P. M. Mr. Rowe is a graduate from the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Hartford, and a well educated, devout and earnest christian minister. All Deaf Mutes in the city and vicinity, are invited to be present at the meetings next Sabbath. The annual meeting of the Mission will be held in Portland, Jan. 1 and 2, 1881.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. Now that Thanksgiving is rapidly approaching our merchants are stocking up, and many of their stores present a most attractive appearance. In this morning's WHIG Messrs Thompson & Kellogg present a most interesting advertisement, enumerating the many good things that can be found in their store for this eventful occasion. It would be useless for us to make mention of the different article, therefore we will let our readers peruse it for themselves.

—Snow & Averill also believe in a liberal use of the printers' ink, and this morning they speak with no unmeaning sound regarding their extensive stock, which is particularly adapted to the wants of this day —T. R. Savage & Co. also inform their many friends through the columns of the WHIG that they are well prepared for Thanksgiving, and claim that their line of goods can't be beat.

NOT THOROUGHLY HARDENED. A few days since Mr. Frank D. Pullen, the genial proprietor of the clothing store on Exchange street, received through the mail, a small package directed to him in a strange hand-writing. It looked as though it might contain something valuable, and thinking that perhaps some of his wealthy friends had opened their hearts, Frank very cautiously removed the wrapper in order that nothing should escape. This suspicion was strengthened when he first opened the box, for it was filled with jeweler's cotton, packed in which he found a gold pin and stud, but in making a close examination he saw that the jewelry had a familiar appearance, and turning to the box once more, he found a note upon which was written the following explanation "Mr Pullen—Two or three months ago I took these things from you, for which I am very sorry. I hope you will forgive a sorry boy." The postscript was badly blurred so that it was impossible to tell where the box was mailed. The boy evidently took the jewelry while he was making some purchases at the store, but the theft rested so heavily upon his conscience that he returned the things to their rightful owner.

SHOE MANUFACTURERS. The National Convention of the Shoe Manufacturers which is called to meet in Philadelphia Nov 16th, is attracting some attention among the Auburn manufacturers, who are suffering from the heavy tax paid to the machine patentees. The McKay tax is attracting the most attention. It appears that in 1879 dividends paid by the McKay Sewing Machine Associat on amounted to $720,000, which is $11 a share on the 50,000 shares having a par value of $10. The average dividends for the past ten years have been $400,000 yearly. At this rate the total dividends for eighteen years up to 1881, when the patents expire, would be over eight mill ons of dollars. The McKay Associ ation lease their sewing machines for $300 a year, rent in advance, in addition to the royalties or stamp paid on each pair of shoes. The machines, it is asserted, could be sold, if the public could make them for $100. Some manufacturers use more than $20,000 in stamps in a year the stamps costing two cents a pair on shoes sewed by the machines, one-half cent per pair on the Tapley burnishing machines Of course, the cost of these stamps are added to the price of the shoes, and so comes out of the general public.—Lewiston Journal.

TOO GOOD TO KEEP Sunday evening one of our young gentlemen escorted a lady friend from church, and the night being particularly fine, they concluded to make a call on another friend before returning home The walk was quite a long one, and consequently it was about eleven o'clock when the gentleman left his fair friend at her own door. He of course did not think she would have any trouble in getting into the house, as the lights were burning brightly, and bidding her good evening, he took his departure. But right here a very serious obstacle presented itself in the shape of the front door, which was securely fastened for the night. After ringing the bell and finding that she was unable to raise any one, the young lady stepped into the next house, and prepared to pass the night with an intimate friend. Not long after this her father was aroused and seeing that the lights were all burning brightly he began to investigate, when he found that his daughter was out. He started for the house of the young man's father to make inquiries, both of whom were called out of bed, when the young man sleepily insisted that he left the young lady at her own door some time previous and supposed she had gone into the house. The gentleman then went off in another direction, and after quite a search found the young lady at the house of her friend. A catch key would not have been amiss on that occasion.

FOR THE LADIES. Embroidery of narrow ribbons appears on some of the new coats for evening wear. Algerian wool in stripes of red and gold is used to brighten black suits for very young ladies. Some polonaises are drawn back from the front and sides like those worn in the days of Marie Antoinette, and called by the name of Trianon. Transparent fans made of embroidered net are pretty for evening use. Those made of white and wrought in silver are elegant for wedding costumes. When the back of a dress is trimmed with flounces and the front is plain four or five perpendicular folds of satin are set at the two ends of the flounces. Bows of brocade cut so as to look like two handkerchief corners, and tightly strapped, are used to trim the backs of gowns made with brocade aprons. A toilet set does not now consist of three mats for the scent bottles and powder box, but of a table cover and cushion cover, and sometimes, also, a splasher. The new woven feather bands are not at all like those trimmings formerly called feather, but are so light and thin that they are sometimes doubled for collars. The skirts which are made with three deep pleated flounces in the back have square-cornered aprons in front, made so long as to nearly reach the braid on the bottom of the skirt. Berlin cloaks of silk and brocade have been imported in large numbers this winter. They come from the same firms that send out the tailor-made wool suits, and are very cheap. Short gowns have their skirts arranged either in wide box plaits or in fine side plaits. The narrow plaiting at the foot edges a suppositious silk skirt beneath that of woolen. Among the pretty polonaises is one which instead of buttoning down the front, has the left side drawn over towards the right and looped just below the waist. As this looped side is made rather longer than the other it has the effect of an apron front.

THE GRAND TRUNK. The managers of the Grand Trunk and the business men of Portland are discussing the proposition of new wharves and elevator in Portland, for the Grand Trunk's increasing business. The purchase of the Portland & Ogdensburg Railroad is a mooted question now. It is said that a party of capitalists in Portland will pay $400,000 for the city's interest in the road in five annual installment's of $80,000 a year, the money to go towards the reduction of the city debt.

It is also reported that the holders of the so-called Harding bonds, who reside in New York, are very anxious to get possession of the property, and will pay a heavy sum for it. The Eastern and Boston Thompson & Kellogg present a most interesting advertisement, enumerating the many good things that can be found in their store for this eventful occasion. It would be useless for us to make mention of the different article, therefore we will let our readers peruse it for themselves.

—Snow & Averill also believe in a liberal use of the printers' ink, and this morning they speak with no unmeaning sound regarding their extensive stock, which is particularly adapted to the wants of this day —T. THE ICE BUSINESS

Preparations for the Coming Season.

The indications now are that a large quantity of ice will again be harvested on this river the coming winter. Three permanent houses are now being erected, several more will soon be started, and if the outlook is encouraging for a favorable winter others will follow. Those that are already started are the Arctic, Frost, Lord and others and Pitman, the latter being located this side of Hodgkins, Hall & Foster's mill. Barstow & Co. are grading just below the Sargent houses. Dole, Wiswell & Co are grading this side of the Arctic house, and Engel will build on the Egery lot, on the Brewer shore. It is quite probable that a house will also be erected in the vicinity of the Brewer Marine Railway. The Penobscot River Company have purchased an elevator, endless chain and engine, and Mr. Robinson is now in Boston after a boiler. The tower is rapidly approaching completion and in a short time they will be thoroughly equipped for the campaign The company that are now building on the old Arctic property will also put in an endless chain, and Messrs. Frost and Lord also have the matter under consideration

Below we give some figures that will show about the amount that will be cut on this river

Penobscot River Co,	15,000 to 20,000 tons
Arctic Company,	16 000 to 18,000 "
Sargent & Sons,	12,000 to 15,000 "
Frost & Lord,	12,000 to 15,000 "
Smith, Woodbury & Co,	10 000 to 12,000 "
Dole, Wiswell & Co,	8,000 to 10,000 "
Barstow & Co.,	8,000 to 10,000 "
Katahdin Co,	8,000 to 10 000 "
W C Pitman	6,000 to 8 000 "
E H & H. Rollins,	6 000 to 8,000 "
Wm Engel,	2,000 to 3 000 "
A H. Babcock,	2 000 to 3 000 "

As has already been stated in these columns, we have every facility on this river with which to establish this important industry, and we are glad to see that so many of our citizens intend to make it a permanent business. Of course last year was unusually favorable for the ice business, and it is not to be expected that such enormous profits will be realized the coming season, but it is not unreasonable to expect a market for what ice may be harvested here, at a fair advance on the cost. The benefits to the city derived from this industry last year were many, and taken in connection with the bright outlook for lumber, the indications are that business will boom here another year.

FROM DEXTER.

The Schools—Business Lively—Operetta —Musical Conventions, Etc.

DEXTER, Nov. 15, 1880.

The schools here closed last week. The examination of the classes in the High School occurred on Thursday, and the exercises are said to have been of a very interesting character. Good advancement has been made and there has the past term been but a slight falling off in the number of attending pupils. The present Supervisor of the schools is showing a good deal of interest in his work, and his ideas seem to be not only progressive but practical as well.

This town now presents an appearance altogether different from that which was remarked a year ago. The manufacturing interests are what give to Dexter its life; when they are prostrated everything else is flat. The Dexter Mills Corporation have now got a good portion of their machinery into operation, and everything about town now has a lively look. The manufacturers all feel first rate apparently, and fully believe that there is before them an extended period of business prosperity.

Miss Eva E. Foster, the successful teacher of vocal music, has engaged Town Hall for Thanksgiving evening, when she will, with the aid of her pupils, produce the operetta entitled "Rosina." Considerable time and care have been expended upon the rehearsal of this piece, and lovers of music are looking for something meritorious.

Several musicians from this section will be in attendance at the musical convention in your city this week. This seems to be a period when these gatherings thrive. First that at Newport; now the one above named; on the 30th that at Skowhegan, to be conducted by L. A. Torrens, of Boston; and December 6th, one at Norridgewock, and in the early part of January another will be held at Pittsfield, to be conducted by Dr. W. O. Perkins, of Boston.

The pond here has felt the rains to some extent, but the water is still at a very low mark, and it will be quite a while, even with plenteous rains before it is well up.

Mr. Brad Savage has opened a tailoring establishment in the old Dexter House Block. He was formerly in business at Corinna. There is one other tailor here now and two extensive ready made clothing stores—so, if the people have money by them there is no reason why they may not keep warm and be in style.

Newburgh High School.

The closing exercises of the fall term of the High School at North Newburgh, under the instructions of L. P. Toothaker, occurred on Friday, Nov. 5th, 1880. The first part of the day was devoted to a public examination of the classes in the several studies. In the afternoon was very successfully carried out the following programme:

Mayo; Declamation, "Pay As You Go," Willie Miller; Recitation, "Curfew Must Not Ring To-night" Mary Packard; Instrumental music, Becky Whitney, Reading, "Don't Stand on the Track," Anne Garland; Declamation, "Soldiers' Dirge," T. Dunton; Reading, "Home Without Father or Mother," Sidie Kimball, Instrumental Music, Maud L. Whitney; Declamation, "Press on," Elmer E. Hewes, Reading, "A Mother's Smile," Annie Davis, Declamation, "Let Virtue be Your Aim," C L Whitney, Song "Pse Going Back to Dixie" Willie and Otho Packard, Declamation, "Address to Returned Soldiers," Frank Loud; Recitation, "Who was the first Tempter?" HUMBUGGED AGAIN.

I saw so much said about the merits of Hop Bitters, and my wife who was always doctoring, and never well, teased me so urgently to get her some, I concluded to be humbugged again, and I am glad I did, for in less than two months use of the Bitters my wife was cured and she has remained so for eighteen months since. I like such humbugging.—H. T., St. Paul. —Pioneer Press.

INFECTION IN THE MILK CAN.

The opinion some time ago advanced by certain physicians that infectious diseases may be, and not unfrequently are, spread among people through the agency of their daily milk supply, seems to be growing into a settled conviction in the minds of many observers and investigators. A recent outbreak of scarlet fever in the city of London, is supposed to owe its origin to a case of the same disease in the family of the milk producer or peddler, and so strong is this belief among the aristocratic consumers who were served with the milk that Government has taken hold of the matter, and will make a thorough investigation. The publicity given to such investigations will incline purchasers of milk in our own cities, says the N. E. Farmer, to look about them and learn, if possible how their daily supply is handled before it reaches their tables. City people are beginning to realize that there are different grades of milk offered in market as well as of other articles of consumption, even though the price may not greatly vary. The great mistake has been that milk has been quoted and sold as though all samples were of uniform character and value while the fact is there is as great a variation as in most other articles of food. Some farmers are very neat in all their work and milk they send to market is as clean as milk can be, while that from other stables may be only fit for hogs, but far too often the product from such widely differing surroundings finds its customers for a while at least, under a uniform price. Filthy milk is bad enough, but milk filled with the seeds of contagious diseases is too revolting to think of.

The truth is, our whole system of milk supply for cities is exceedingly crude, imperfect and expensive. The business has grown up without much system, further than to produce and sell the largest possible amount of milk with the least possible amount of skill and care in its production and delivery. Our farmers are receiving too little for their milk and the temptation is very strong to make it as poor as possible and have it pass. Cows giving a large quantity of milk regardless of quality are the ones most desired by milk farmers. The cost to consumers is too great for the quality received, not wholly on account of the large profits taken by the dealers, but on account of the cumbersome and expensive system of delivery. Illustrations of which can be seen in almost any county village where milk is sold by two or more milk men. Instead of having the whole of a street or a certain section of a village supplied from a single car, each peddler goes over the whole village or city, supplying only here and there a family, while every other peddler is doing the same, all thus each crossing the other's path from the beginning to the end of the route. Milk should be delivered as mail matter is left by carriers, at every residence within a certain district, no skipping of houses on the route, to be taken by another carrier.

What seems to be needed is an association of interests and the adoption of some plan by which the business can be greatly simplified, and at the same time some guarantee secured for the delivery of pure, wholesome milk, so that consumers can have full confidence that the food they are buying does not contain that which will endanger the life or health of those who consume it.

We note one of our exchanges horse radish recommended as a cure for the habit of cribbing in horses. A small amount should be mixed with the feed on alternate days, two quarts being enough to last a week.

AN AGRICULTURAL CREED. 1. Do not cultivate poor land. It is a feeble mother which can give no sustenance.

2. If your land is poor you must limit the area of cultivation to your ability to manure—let it be ever so little—and you will be no ganer by it.

3. First put yourself to produce manure on the farm. Such manure is the flour which makes the loaf and a commercial fertilizer is only a leaven to it. Home made manures cost one labor and but little money, while commercial fertilizers will bring you in debt and are a kind of food with which mother earth can not entirely rely and fatten upon. We are not their enemy but active friend, when judiciously used and can be had without too great a strain on the farmer's credit.

4. Bring to the aid of your manure pile green fallow crops and try to clothe the bosom of mother earth with the green verdure of grass from which live stock can be fed.

5. Keep as much stock as can be fed well for this adds to the manure pile and their increase, and a few fat carcasses afford a big interest on the investment.

6. Diversify crops as much as possible and do not rely on one staple. This will make your manure and labor pay a profit in some places when they fail in others.

7. Manure! manure! manure and as before suggested, rely on the farm principally to produce it. It will put money in your pocket.

8. No grass no stock no manure, no manure no permanent improvement of the land.

LICE, NOT CHOLERA. The real amount of damage done by lice and other parasites generally on poultry, says an exchange is not commonly known. With nine-tenths of the people when a fowl dies it is said to be from cholera, where is the true cause at the bottom is much more likely to be vermin or roup. Thousands of fowls are dwarfed and killed by the vermin which infest their bodies and houses, especially in summer time. There are parasites of all sizes and colors that are continually sapping out the very life from the fowls and making them so weak that they are easy victims to all diseases. Your fowls drop off one by one and you wonder what is the matter. Reader if you have a poultry house, there are probably thousands of vermin swarming in it now. Some are so small and of such color that it is hard to see them. Shake one of the fowls over the sleeve of your white shirt and look well for the result. You need not expect the chick to grow fast nor the older ones to give good returns in eggs while there are lice about.

Now, to kill these pests and to prevent them, clean the house well take whitewash (to which may be added a handy of little carbolic acid) and apply thoroughly to the roosts nests, cracks, etc. and if you do the work well you have got them. After this, once a week, rub coal oil on the poles just before the fowls go to roost. Three or four times a year, fumigate the house with burning sulphur and rosin, while the fowls are outside. Branches of cedar trees in the house, or carbolic powder kept scattered around on the floor or in the nests, or tobacco stems and leaves used the same way are excellent preventatives. Vermin do not like the smell of cedar, and generally keep away from it. Oil is death to them. But do not put too much coal oil on a mother hen, for it will kill the chicks that brood under her as well as kill the vermin. No one can estimate the damage they do. Give the house a good dose of whitewash now, before you forget it, and oil the poles weekly, and it will pay you big.

FELLOWS' SYRUP

Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

WERE FELLOWS COMPOUND SYRUP useless in all other diseases the benefit which it undoubtedly yields in Consumption and other diseases of the Respiratory Organs, would vindicate its claim to the attention of every medical practitioner. From the statistics of England and America it is a fair estimate that one tenth of the entire deaths is caused by Consumption alone. If the Syrup is used perseveringly it subdues the tendency to Consumption and in many confirmed cases, as in that of the inventor, it has effected a cure.

Indigestion and habitual Costiveness almost always arise from weakness of the nerves and muscles of the stomach and bowels. In such cases Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites has proved itself of the greatest service. The evacuations soon become copious and healthy.

This Syrup will cure PULMONARY CONSUMPTION in the first stage and will give great relief and prolong life in the second and third. It will cure ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LARYNGITIS and COUGHS. It will cure all diseases originating from want of Muscular Action and Nervous Force.

Public Speakers and Singers.

Will find this Syrup of inestimable value. A dose should be taken before speaking or singing. Aphonia or the Loss of Voice is usually cured by a few doses. We have known cases where a single dose has been effectual.

S. JACOB, M. D., St John, N. B., writes:

"I feel occasion to use your Syrup in a case of Asthma which would not yield to regular treatment. It proved to be all that you claimed for it, having given the expectation and entire satisfaction."

☞ Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.
